

WATERFRONT: THE ENTRANCE WALK + NEW WORKS COTTAGES

A scenic walk along the shores of Lake Cunningham, to the artificially constructed Entrance of the Gippsland Lakes. Seals and dolphins are often spotted frolicking in the tidal pulls at the Entrance.

Cross the footbridge then follow a signposted track to the right (west) and take the sandy track until you reach an intersection.

Around the site of the construction of the Entrance, known locally as the 'New Works', scattered artefacts remain that speak to the original infrastructure required for the project providing an insight into the scale of this design and engineering achievement over 100 years ago.

Turn right (north) and follow the track to water. Head west along the shoreline to view the ten heritage New Works cottages. The New Works cottages are surviving links with the construction of the Entrance. Built to house the construction workers and fishermen, this township was for a short time named after the first contractor,

John Carpenter. On licence from the Crown, the cottages have for many years been restricted to same family ownership, and have been passed down through the generations. A series of interpretative signs with a brief history of each cottage/site now in place on the New Works Village Walk along the lake shore.

Continue along the walk, until you arrive at the Entrance. Return via Lakes Entrance Beach. Exit at the Surf Lifesaving Lookout tower to follow the path back across the Footbridge.
